ABSTRACT

PT Telkom Witel West Sumatra is a service provider operating in West Sumatra. In order to improve the quality of customer service and customer loyalty, the BGES Division of PT Telkom Witel West Sumatra decided to implement a CRM (Customer Relationship Management) system. The aim of this research is to apply Customer Relationship Management (CRM) to improve the quality of customer (company) service in the Business, Government and Enterprise Services (BGES) division of PT Telkom Witel West Sumatra. In an era of intense business competition, CRM is a strategic solution for managing customer relationships effectively and efficiently to increase customer satisfaction and loyalty. The research method is a case study with a qualitative approach. Information was collected through in-depth interviews, observation and analysis of documents related to the BGES division's customer service process. Overall, the results of this research indicate that CRM has great potential to improve the quality of customer service at PT Telkom Witel BGES West Sumatra Division, as long as management is fully committed and there is adequate support in the implementation process. It is hoped that this research can contribute to the development of better customer service strategies in the future and become a reference for further research.
